

Monday's Meeting: March 26, 2018

Matt Bell

Team Recovery

Matt Bell, 31 years old, is the President and Co-founder of Team Recovery, and the Chief Operations Officer of Midwest Recovery Center & Midwest Detox Center. Born and raised in Toledo, he graduated from St. Francis de Sales in 2005 and earned an academic/athletic scholarship to the University of Toledo, where he played baseball. After an injury, he became addicted to the pain killers that were prescribed to him. One thing led to another, and as we see so often today, Matts situation turned into a 9 year bout with heroin. Jail, arrests, and overdoses became his reality, although that was never anything he foresaw or dreamt of doing. Today, in Team Recovery & Midwest Recovery Center, he uses his past & his biggest liabilities as assets to help the individuals and families who are still suffering from the disease of addiction, and to carry an important message to our youth.

Matt will be speaking on surviving addiction, finding a way out, and using his past liabilities to be his current assets. Team Recovery started with a few of them together in detox in Toledo, Ohio. They originally formed it to help one another and start a movement to break the stigma that is attached to drug addiction. Within a very short time it has evolved to MUCH more!

John Gorski

North American Science Associates

John Gorski, President and CEO of North American Science Associates (NAMSA), talked about new technology in the medical device industry. Instead of an 8 hour surgery to clear blocked arteries in the heart, they are now able to feed a catheter through the groin up into the heart and expand a stent to clear the blocked artery. This makes recovery time significantly shorter. They now have mechanical and tissue mitral valves—which can replace a leaking mitral valve in your heart where blood flows backwards. The US makes up 38% of the medical device market, and the global market is expected to grow at rate of 5.3% through 2020 to $478 billion. Approval for new medical devices can take anywhere from 3 up to 7 years. All countries have their own approval processes and guidelines. The US market is one of the markets that takes the longest for approval of new devices.

Our world's population keeps growing at a faster rate, and over 15% of the average age of the population is over 65. The prevalence of chronic disease in the US is expected to reach 171 million by 2030. These facts increase the need for newer technology. Gorski believes medical devices should be chosen over medicines because they last longer and have fewer chances of interacting with one another. With technological advances in the medical device industry, the possibilities are endless. Google is even developing a contact lens that can detect glucose levels in tears— removing the need for people with diabetes to prick their fingers to draw blood.
