Chuck Stocking

Principle Business Enterprises

Principle Business Enterprises was founded by Chuck Stocking's in-laws in 1961. They began their business with trying to sell "Pillow Paws" slippers. After 7 years of ineffectively marketing the slippers for personal home comfort, they were found, instead, to prove effective in the hospital market for reducing the risk of slips and falls. By listening to people, PBE was able to expand their products and niches, and found there was a need for super absorbent incontinence products. In 2006, they began the production of disposable absorbent underwear.

PBE follows their daily operations based on the 4-way test and their 8 core values. These values are: commitment, integrity, teamwork, respect, engagement, excellence, continuous improvement and community. Their mission statement: "To be an example of the right idea of business that operates and prospers from a principled base and tends towards uplifting, enlightening, and enriching the lives of those it serves 'that they might have life and that they might have it more abundantly'."

Principle Business Enterprises listens to the needs of people and are expanding their niche by bringing products to improve consumer's lives. They are now expanding their super absorbent lines beyond incontinence products, to include wound care applications. Their promise is to "dramatically reduce costs of care while improving the quality of life".
